Many Saloons Are Converted Into Places Where Soft Drinks Are Sold, Says Forthcoming Review by Federal Officers.

Federal Officers.

Washington, June 21.—Despite the evarious efforts to stay the coming into effect of profibition tide is in progress of the continuing manufacturing properties to other industrial uses, is the conclusion of Lindley D. Clark, in an article on the subject which is to appear in the forth-coming Monthly Labor Review for June To some extent at least. Mr. Clark finds, barroom fixtures will be fire flower man's club as the saloun has been called by various classes of persons, will be still available if intitlated plans prove successful.

These plans contemplate the transforming of the salouns into places where soft drinks may be sold and refreshments served by former barroom, which such line of the profit of the country.

Mention is made of two efforts that are now under way to stay the effect of the prohibition amendment that has legally been adopted by frighted the Legislatures in those States which have the referendum to raiffy the amendment. The argument on which such line of procedure is based is that under the referendum is invoked.

The other line of attack rests upon a resolution applied by the amendment and the saloure of Rhode Islanding with the amendment as an infringement upon the police power of the State and 'contrary to the spirit and system of the dual form of government erected by the title encouragement is held out to those who hope sentiment among the refused of the spirit and system of the dual form of government erected by the late of the spirit and system of the state of the spirit and system of the state of the spirit and system of the fixed and 'contrary to the spirit and system of the state and 'contrary to the spirit and system of the state of the state and 'contrary to the s squared form of government erected by the Constitution."

Little encouragement is held out to those who hope sentiment among the returning soldiers will effect a repeal of the prohibition amendment. The remark has been frequently made that when the soldiers return to civil life there will be a vigorous and effective protest against the action taken in their absence. No real preponderance of opinion has been obtained on this of the measure confidently announce fenthusiastic approval or disapproval of their respective views by the soldiers with whom they have come into contact.

It seems reasonable to assume that as they represent the whole area of the country, so also do they represent the diverse opinions in an average ratio, and that no unity of action is to be expected from them on this or any similar question on which men differ. Furthermore, the Congress which submitted the amendment was elected in 1916, with all voters at home, and with the attitude of candidates on the question an issue in many congressional districts.

Industrial conditions resultant apon the inception of prohibition have been in a large measure anticipated. The end of the use of grain and other materials in distilleries necessarily meant the closing of such places when materials in process of manufacture were worked up, and in the abnormal conditions of the time the distribution of the workers caused little, if any, disturbance. The brewerles, too, though in less degree, have already made partial adjustments and are being converted into plants for a variety of uses, as cold-storage plants, packing houses, ice factories, canneries, creameries, factories for the production of soft drinks, ice cream, sirup, paint, soap and chemicals.

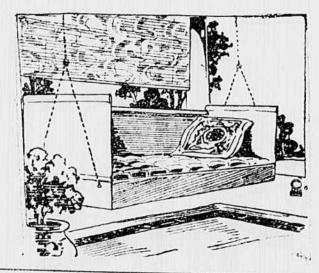

A large development is forecast in the production of denatured alcohol for industrial purposes, using for this purpose many products not suitable for the manufacture of spirits for beverage use. It has been estimated that the produce of 5,000,000 acres of land will become available for food in place of being consumed in the manufacture of intoxicants.
